Dover Memorial Library Dedicated

Gardner-Webb's new John B. Dover Memorial Library was dedicated Oct. 29 amid the festivities of Homecoming and Founders Day.

Some 400 persons gathered in the Charles I. Dover Campus Center for the Founders Day luncheon and dedication service. John B. Dover III, Shelby attorney, made the formal presentation of the building on behalf of the Dover family to the college. The building is named in honor of his grandfather, whom he remembered as "a very disciplined man . . . who made the Bible the center of his reading experience."

Dr. R. Eugene Poston, college president, pointed out that Gardner-Webb began operations in the same year—1907—that the Dover Textiles enterprise began in Cleveland County.

"Dover has been a firm that has been synonymous with Gardner-Webb over the years as the two have grown together," he said.

The Rev. William A. Wallace, pastor of the First Grace Baptist Church in Gastonia and a member of the college's board of trustees, accepted the library in Gardner-Webb's behalf.

Kenneth Upchurch, director of city-metropolitan missions of the Baptist State Convention, brought words on behalf of North Carolina Baptists. William S. Buckley, president of the college student government, expressed the students' appreciation and Professor Leland Jolley expressed appreciation of the faculty.

Mathematics Professor Hubert Dixon related the growth of the library from a small basement room, through a government surplus building, to the former Dover library and the new $1,250,000 facility.

The Founders Day program paid tribute to named gifts and collections in the library. One is the "Dover Shelves," a fund begun in 1963 by Charles I. Dover and the late John B. Dover, Jr., sons of the man for whom the library is named, to purchase library books.

Others are the music listening room named for Mr. and Mrs. J. Alister Burns and the rare books and artifacts room named for their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. J. Wayne Burns. J. Wayne Burns is secretary of the college's board of trustees.

Study carrels with special audio facilities have been given by Mrs. L.M. Ledford of Shelby in memory of her husband, Lemson Holly Ledford; Mr. and Mrs. John Washburn, Jr., of Boiling Springs in memory of Mrs. Washburn's parents, Mr. and Mrs. B.M. Hunt; and by Long Creek Memorial Baptist Church of Dallas.

The library houses several special collections presented as gifts. One is the collection of the late Dr. R.C. Campbell, given by his wife in 1963 and containing more than 1,100 books, mostly in the religious area. Another is the collection of Mrs. O. Max Gardner, wife of the North Carolina governor, including diaries, holograph notes, correspondence and many other items from letters to her husband's diary. Another is the collection of Thomas Dixon, Cleveland County native who was a lawyer, author, orator, playwright, actor and minister.

Football Highlights

The Gardner-Webb Bulldog football team ended its 1974 season with two wins, six losses, and a tie. The wins came over nationally ranked Georgetown 35-14 and, for the first time ever, over traditional rival Carson-Newman 35-28. Both wins were on the road.

The losses were to Newberry 31-17, Wofford 14-9, Guilford 17-14, Catawba 33-3, Mars Hill 35-23, and Presbyterian 35-7.

The tie came in the first game of the season against a tough Lenoir Rhyne team in Hickory, 14-14.

The Bulldog rushing offense was a potent weapon, gaining a total of 1,768 yards on 459 carries for a 198.7 per game average to 1,887 yards on 475 carries for 228.8 yards per game for the opposition. But the passing fell far short of opponents' mark, with 654 yards to 1,240 yards and a 12.7 per game average to 137.8 for the opposition.

Opponents' standouts for the Dogs were sophomores running back Frank Taylor, who gained 553 yards on 107 carries for a 5.0 rushing average, and freshman running back Po Rogers, who earned 68 carries for 387 yards and a 5.6 average per carry.

Defensively the Bulldogs were led by sophomore linebacker Merren Trivette and senior tackle Arnold Smith. Trivette was credited with 13 individual tackles, 33 actual contacts, and 42 assists, while Smith had seven individual, 31 first contacts, and 33 assists.

The starting kicker for the Dogs was senior placekicker Mike Stephens with 14 extra points and six field goals for 38 points.

20-Game Cage Schedule Ahead

A veteran Gardner-Webb College basketball team is off to a 20-game schedule, plus three tournaments and a round robin affair in Rio de Janeiro. The season opener was set for Nov. 23-24 when the Bulldogs were to travel to Milligan, Tenn., for the Milligan Tip-Off Tournament.

Coach Eddie Hollbrook and his staff have five seniors returning, but will feel the loss of All-American John Drew who signed with the Atlanta Hawks of the NBA, after being drafted in the second round as a sophomore.

One of the most notable changes for this season will be the moving of Jim Blanks, a 20-plus scorer for the last two years, to Drew's wing spot. Blanks is an excellent jump shooter and passer and some feel he will be an even better player out on the floor than he has been inside.

With Blanks moving to the wing, more pressure will fall on Alvin Jones, Lester Stinson, and John Benight inside. Jones is probably the most improved player on the squad. His physical strength on the boards and willingness to the ball defensively make him a real asset. His three years of experience should enable him to enjoy his finest year on the Bulldog.

A real key inside will be the development of 6'10" Lester Stinson. As a freshman he had made remarkable progress until the final month of the season, when a fractured ankle sidelined him.

The strongest player on the club, John Seight, rounds out the inside game in the low post.

The wings will be manned by returnees Billy Ellis and Doug Turner. Ellis has been a dynamo in the Bulldog machine for the last two years with tremendous hustle. Ellis, along with Turner, offered the Dogs two seasoned seniors, both having the experience of two trips to the nationals.

The point position looks to be stronger than ever with the addition of John Post, a highly recruited freshman from state-runners-up Jeffersonville, Ind. He, along with returning Dennis Foster (who has been given a clean bill of health by the doctors after a bout with rheumatoid fever), should give the Dogs the best handle against the press and in the running game than they have had in some time. George White, a 6'1" junior college transfer from Nashville, Tenn., could also be a real asset.

Although eight veterans return it looks like the Dogs have come up with three prize, highly recruited freshmen, in Pat, Gene Brown, 6'7", of Lafayette, Ind., who will play the high post and wing, and Norman Miles, 6'3", a wing player who should provide the big defensive guard that has been missing the last two years.
